TOPIC: POWER OF COMMUNICATION

Communication has always been the crucial part of mankind's social life. It has changed according to the changes in people's living standards and all other circumstances such as technological developments. Throughout history, the technology has had a huge impact on the means of communication. In the past, smoke was used as a means of communication from one mountain to another. Needless to say that only a few simple messages could be sent and received with this primitive method of smoke signals. Carrier pigeon was another means of communication to send messages further away. The letter, which was replaced with fax and e-mail consecutively, used to be a common means of communication as well. People needed to send their messages further away and faster as the world population increased and started to be globalized. This period has influenced the methods of communication.

Today, we use telephone, mobiles, text messages, fax, e-mail, internet as ways of communication. The inventors and producers are always on the go to develop faster, cheaper, smaller-sized, multi-tasking gadgets for communication. The best of all these changes is the launching of social networking sites. Twitter, Facebook, Myspace, YouTube and scores of others- all part of the new and wonderful ways we can now connect with one another electronically, each with its own culture and unique set of rules. In one sense, the planet has never been more interconnected.

It's a great way for us to communicate with our loved ones from other countries without incurring expensive phone bills. Businesses also take advantage of marketing strategies in social web sites in a less expensive way. Social networks give you the opportunity to branch out and interact with the friends of your friends. It widens your social circle and you can connect to possible job connections at the same time.

Facebook and Twitter have become the main communication channels and are effectively reaching individual people or thousands of people at the same time. It is not difficult to predict the future of communication as the trend of wireless technology seems to continue to improve. HDVT's, hologram simulators are the clues for possibility of image transferring or the matter transferring at the speed of light in future. We will be transferred to communicate our own messages to the other places in an instant one day.
